

It is wrong for Sinclair Broadcasting to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election. Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest.

Through media consolidation one large company can have undue influence on enormous populations. This is not democratic. We live in a Democracy, and our citizens should have access to substantive news about issues that matter delivered NOT by a centralized news source, but by real people from our own communities.

Media ownership rules need to be strengthened to ensure that media organizations follow the laws of this country and are working to further our Democratic values. Also, the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard.
Thank you.
